🌱 The weather doesn't stop the staff in NordGen's cultivation team! 🌱

Here, Lamia and Marcus are wading through tall landraces of oats that are part of the Avenue project. This collaborative project involves NordGen, The James Hutton Institute in Scotland, the Innovation Centre for Organic Farming and the Centre for Quantitative Genetics and Genomics at Aarhus University. Avenue is funded by the Novo Nordisk Foundation and aims to develop higher quality oat varieties suitable for organic farming.

Great to see such dedication in the field, regardless of the weather! 🌧️🌱 The Avenue project is a strong example of collaborative science driving real agricultural innovation; especially in developing resilient, high quality oat varieties for organic systems. Looking forward to the outcomes! 🌾🍷
